

Can exclude this box, was originally going to be a directory, but I don't think that's needed

Currently not present, but a profile button that directs back to the profile.

Another Box for user to add genres and tags (not currently present). These would probably be from a predefined list that would appear in a drop down off to the side. If there is an easier way to input this from the library we can do that too.

Currently not present, but will need a button that allows users to determine where readers can add branches

Publishes story or Branch, creates a new clickable link in User's profile for that story or Branch.

Story title that user can input and edit if it's a new Story. If adding a branch then this is non-editable.

Branch title that user can input and edit. This should probably only be present for users adding a Branch, but if easier for now we can include for New Stories.

Area where user inputs story or branch text. Allows up to 2000 characters per page

Thinking this should actually be a page indicator/feature similar to the main page, with the current page bolded, and the numbers of the adjacent pages visible and clickable (and directing to the respective page when clicked).
